Postoperative renal dysfunction after resection of superficial tumours of the colon and rectum. 1,056 patients underwent resection for a tumour of the colon or rectum (CC/RC) during a 13-year period. 23 of these patients (2.0%) developed postoperative renal dysfunction (PRD). A new definition of PRD, based on subnormal diuresis, persistent serum creatinine above 60 $\mu\text{mol/l}$, and/or oliguria lasting over 24 h, is proposed. 19 of the 23 (83%) had PRD as a result of irradiation, and for all but one, this occurred after resection of more than one segment of the colon/rectum.Q: Is it possible to set the background color of a JButton in ActionEvent ActionCommand I am using NetBeans, and I would like to know if its possible to set the background color of a JButton in my ActionEvent ActionCommand. Here is my code: I have two buttons with ActionCommand set to myActionListener, and I would like to change the background color of the buttons. However, I would like to use 1 color for one button, and another color for the other button. myButton.addActionListener(new ActionListener() { public void actionPerformed(ActionEvent ae) { myButton.setBackground(Color.red); } } I know that I could do something similar by simply checking and assigning the color based on the button type, but it's a pain when I have multiple buttons, each with their own background. EDIT: I've since figured out how to change the color of each button in the case that I had explained above. I was using a striped background, so I simply replaced my color.red with the following: Color.white.darker(Color.red); A: You can change the background of JButton by using the setBackground() method. for example. myButton.setBackground(Color.red); If you want to change the background of several JButton, you can extend the JButton class
